ABSTRACT

The purpose of Shopping Cart System is to automate the existing manual system by the help of computerized equipment's and full-fledged computer software, fulfilling their requirements, so that their valuable data/information can be stored for a longer period with easy accessing and manipulation of the same. The required software and hardware are easily available and easy to work with. Shopping Cart System, as described above, can lead to error free, secure, reliable and fast management system. It can assist the user to concentrate on their other activities rather to concentrate on the record keeping. Thus it will help organization in better utilization of resources. The organization can maintain computerized records without redundant entries. That means that one need not be distracted by information that is not relevant, while being able to reach the information. The aim is to automate its existing manual system by the help of computerized equipment's and full-fledged computer software, fulfilling their requirements, so that their valuable data/information can be stored for a longer period with easy accessing and manipulation of the same. Basically the project describes how to manage for good performance and better services for the clients.

INTRODUCTION

1.1 MOTIVATION

Opportunity to win new and potential customers Right course of action ensures your brand marketing is heading the right direction. For attracting the quality traffic, we can always optimize your website to make sure the search engine optimization is helping in fetching the right user-traffic for your site that improves the conversion rate. Often user tends to use web search to look for the relevant information and right site ranking will improve your chance of getting the limelight. For ranking in search engines you need to have a website which is rightly optimized and has the quality information and relevant keywords and for that you need to invest in ecommerce website first. Higher chance of converting user into a buyer one of the prime purposes behind building a website is most likely going to be chance to improve sales. Your commercial website will open new doors to connect and network with potential and interested clients who would want to invest in your products and services. Besides having a physical store, the online store or ecommerce will give you the liberty to connect with your user at any time of the day. That's a good reason to get that ecommerce site ready for your business .

1.2 OBJECTIVE

E-commerce provides an easy way to sell products to a large customer base. However, there is a lot of competition among multiple e-commerce sites. When users land on an e-commerce site, they expect to find what they are looking for quickly and easily. Also, users are not sure about the brands or the actual products they want to purchase. They have a very broad idea about what they want to buy. Many customers nowadays search for their products on Google rather than visiting specific e-commerce sites. They believe that Google will take them to the e-commerce sites that have their product.

1.3 E – commerce

Electronic commerce (ecommerce) refers to companies and individuals that buy and sell goods and services over the Internet. Ecommerce operates in different types of market segments and can be conducted over computers, tablets, smartphones, and other smart devices. Nearly every imaginable product and service is available through ecommerce transactions, including books, music, plane tickets, and financial services such as stock investing and online banking. As such, it is considered a very disruptive technology.

As noted above, ecommerce is the process of buying and selling tangible products and services online. It involves more than one party along with the exchange of data or currency to process a transaction. It is part of the greater industry that is known as electronic business (ebusiness), which involves all of the processes required to run a company online.12

Ecommerce has helped businesses (especially those with a narrow reach like small businesses) gain access to and establish a wider market presence by providing cheaper and more efficient distribution channels for their products or services. Target (TGT) supplemented its brick-and-mortar presence with an online store that allows customers to purchase everything from clothes and coffeemakers to toothpaste and action figures right from their homes.

Providing goods and services isn't as easy as it may seem. It requires a lot of research about the products and services you wish to sell, the market, audience, competition, as well as expected business costs.

Once that's determined, you need to come up with a name and set up a legal structure, such as a corporation. Next, set up an ecommerce site with a payment gateway. For instance, a small business owner who runs a dress shop can set up a website promoting their clothing and other related products online and allow customers to make payments with a credit card or through a payment processing service, such as PayPal.

Types of E-commerce applications

1. B2C – Business to consumer

B2C businesses sell to their end-user. The B2C model is the most common business model, so there are many unique approaches under this umbrella. Anything you buy in an online store as a consumer — think wardrobe, household supplies, entertainment — is done as part of a B2C transaction. The decision-making process for a B2C purchase is much shorter than a business-tobusiness (B2B) purchase, especially for items that have a lower value. Think about it: it's much easier for you to decide on a new pair of tennis shoes than for your company to vet and purchase a new email service provider or food caterer. Because of this shorter sales cycle, B2C businesses typically spend less marketing dollars to make a sale, but also have a lower average order value and less recurring orders than their B2B counterparts. And B2C doesn't only include products, but services as well. B2C innovators have leveraged technology like mobile apps, native advertising and remarketing to market directly to their customers and make their lives easier in the process. For example, using an app like Lawn Guru allows consumers to easily connect with local lawn mowing services, garden and patio specialists, or snow removal experts. 5 Additionally, home service businesses can use Housecall Pro's plumbing software app to track employee routes, text customers, and process credit card payments on the go, benefitting both the consumer and business alike.

2. B2B – Business to business

In a B2B business model, a business sells its product or service to another business. Sometimes the buyer is the end user, but often the buyer resells to the consumer. B2B transactions generally have a longer sales cycle, but higher order value and more recurring purchases. Recent B2B innovators have made a place for themselves by replacing catalogs and order sheets with ecommerce storefronts and improved targeting in niche markets. In 2020, close to half of B2B buyers are millennials — nearly double the amount from 2012. As younger generations enter the age of making business transactions, B2B selling in the online space is becoming more important.

3. C2B – Consumer to business

C2B businesses allow individuals to sell goods and services to companies. In this ecommerce model, a site might allow customers to post the work they want to be completed and have businesses bid for the opportunity. Affiliate marketing services would also be considered C2B. Elance (now Upwork) was an early innovator in this model by helping businesses hire freelancers. The C2B ecommerce model's competitive edge is in pricing for goods and services. This approach gives consumers the power to name their price or have businesses directly compete to meet their needs. Recent innovators have creatively used this model to connect companies to social media influencers to market their products.

4. C2C – Consumer to consumer

A C2C business — also called an online marketplace — connects consumers to exchange goods and services and typically make their money by charging transaction or listing fees. Online businesses like Craigslist and eBay pioneered this model in the early days of the internet. C2C businesses benefit from self-propelled growth by motivated buyers and sellers, but face a key challenge in quality control and technology maintenance.

Five Value Delivery Methods for Ecommerce Innovation

If your business model is the car, then your value delivery method is the engine. This is the fun part — where you find your edge. How will you compete and create an ecommerce business worth sharing? Here are a few of the popular approaches taken by industry-leaders and market disruptors.

1. D2C – Direct to consumer

By cutting out the middleman, a new generation of consumer brands have built loyal followings with rapid growth. Online retailers like Warby Parker and Casper set the standard for vertical disruption, but brands like Glossier are showing us how D2C can continue to be an area for innovation and growth.

2. White label and private label

To "white label" is to apply your name and brand to a generic product purchased from a distributor. In private labeling, a retailer hires a manufacturer to create a unique product for them to sell exclusively. With private labeling and white labeling, you can stay lean on your investments in design and production and look for an edge in technology and marketing.

3. Wholesaling

In a wholesaling approach, a retailer offers its product in bulk at a discount. Wholesaling is traditionally a B2B practice, but many retailers have offered it to budgetconscious consumers in a B2C context.

4. Dropshipping

One of the fastest growing methods of ecommerce is dropshipping. Typically, dropshippers market and sell items fulfilled by a third party supplier, like AliExpress or Printful. Dropshippers act as a middle man by connecting buyers to manufacturers. Easy-to-use tools allow BigCommerce users to integrate inventory from suppliers around the world for their storefronts.

5. Subscription service

As early as the 1600s, publishing companies in England used a subscription model to deliver books monthly to their loyal customers. With ecommerce, businesses are going beyond periodicals and fruit of the month clubs. Today, virtually every industry has seen the arrival of subscription services to bring convenience and savings to customers.

• Searching the accurate data related to the study was another challenge.

• Knowing the appropriate perspective and the preparation of questionnaire was also one of the challenges.

• Studying the impact of covid on e-commerce was a challenge in terms getting the data

ANALYSIS

The Covid19 pandemic also known as the coronavirus pandemic emerged in Wuhan of China and was given an account of to the WHO (World Health Organization) on 31st December 2019. On 30th January 2020, Public Health Emergency was announced as a global concern. Covid-19 name was given to this disease on 11th February 2020. This disease plays with the immunity of the human beings, Low immunity individuals are directly affected by this. The pandemic of Covid-19 is a major pitfall not only for the human's health or life or the economic conditions but also on the overall structured society which is not to be changed to an another extend now. Various new things are introduced during this pandemic some of which were their before but still were unknown which now have developed a new scenario. The National Emergency have not spare anyone each and every sector, each and every section is being affected by it whether rich or poor. One of the sectors being affected is the E-Commerce. The Transactions of Buying and Selling that is the business transaction via the route of internet led to the evolution of E-Commerce or broadly as Electronic Commerce. E-Commerce involves dealing with all sort of goods and services over the internet. It is also known as the Internet Commerce because of the way of its functioning online. The taste, preferences, demand, needs of the consumers are now being shifted from luxury to the basic ones, from the ones with the most comfort to the ones with the need of just survival. All this had call for the economizing of all the resources of the economy. There is a rise in the trust and demand for the E-Commerce industries in order to be safe, secure and main motive of survival led to this increase. Understanding of the change in the consumers perspective towards the E-Commerce is really important not only for the businesses to increase their market share but this time also for the social well-being. The Coronavirus disease led to the social distancing which is why the traditional way of shopping is being neglected in this phase. As going to a crowded place for shopping 11 can make you purchase Covid-19 people avoid going that way rather prefer the convenient and safer option of online shopping.

Methodology

This paper used a survey of 67 people on their perspective as a consumer involved in online shopping. 9 Questions were asked to them for a clearer picture of the viewpoint changes of consumer during the pandemic of covid-19 towards E-Commerce. The Thought process of the world is now changed with the covid19 pandemic which also bought a change in the lifestyle of people as they are trying to adjust with the new normal and all this led to give a push to E-Commerce industry as well. Covid19 provided E-Commerce with a new environment so as to expand their footprints with quite a few challenges to overcome like productivity or the supply chain effectiveness. Social distancing gave a positive impact on the E-commerce industries growth. The following Table 1 shows the revenue earned by the companies in the Quarter 1 of the previous and current year that is 2019 and 2020 has witness an increase even though the economy is facing a downfall.
